

The image shows a close-up, top-down view of a terrazzo floor. The surface is composed of a light-colored, possibly white or off-white, binder material. Embedded throughout this binder are numerous small, irregularly shaped chips of stone or glass. These chips vary in color, including shades of grey, black, and some very small, scattered yellow or orange specks. The overall appearance is a dense, speckled pattern characteristic of terrazzo flooring. The lighting is even, highlighting the texture and the individual chips.
